MINISTER COX had his first interview with the Turkish Grand Vizier on Friday. The topic of conversation was the tariff issue—from which we infer that the Sultan must have directed that Mr. Cox's reputation as a humorist be put to the test to start with.

"DOUBTLESS Mr. Cleveland seems to some to move too slowly," Governor Hoadley observes. "To which the hungry and thirsty Democrat, tired unto despair of 'hard-tack and sowbelly,' may appropriately respond, with Hamlet, 'Seems! Nay, it is. I know notseers.'"

THE English papers are very angry over Vice-President Hendricks' indorsement of Parnell; but in a reasonable view of the case, Parnell has cause to complain. Mr. Hendricks' indorsements are just now rather disadvantageous than otherwise, as many an Indiana office-seeker knows to his sorrow.

MR. E. B. EWING, recently appointed Consul General to Mexico, is at Jefferson City, with no intention of resigning his office, but determined to regain his health at the expense of the government and to go to Mexico after a while. The report of his resignation seemed to us very fishy at the start. In the order of nature the Ewings, bring mortal, occasionally die; but in the order of politics the Ewings, being Democrats and brothers-in-law, never resign.

A TERRIBLE famine is said to be impending in India; and India is in a condition, therefore, to understand the misery of the Democratic party in the United States.

CLEVELAND has had a rest, and now he kindly asks the office-seekers to take one.

After breakfast, to make yourself see happy, go to Ashmun & Walker's and purchase a choice imported cigar. The Pioneer Mills Flour, Sacramento, is the best in the market. For sale at the Cash of Wolford &

Will Prosecute the Old Man.

Mexico, Sept. 17.
Mr. Dunn, the young man who attempted to elope with Miss Edwards at New Bloomfield last Tuesday, and who was shot by the girls farther, yesterday swore out a warrant and had the old gentle man arrested for assault with intent to kill. Miss Edwards has been confined to her room since the escape from nervous prostration brought on by excitement. Dunn was scared more than hurt, and will be up and about in a short time. The young lady visitor of Miss Edward from Ill., who was let into the secret and who gave it away to the old man, has it is said, suddenly returned to her home without as much as even saying farewell to her bosom friend, although Miss Edward was lying very ill when she left. The young couple, nothing daunted, say they will try to elope again, and that success will crown their efforts the next time.

The Villain Escaped.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 17.
Some few weeks since a young man named Joe Martin, a native of New Orleans, came to Galveston. He was in rather straightened circumstances, and met a man named Berry, employed as barkeeper in the "Two Brothers" saloon, who had known him in New Orleans and who took him to his room and fed him. Martin requited this kindness by prevailing upon Leona, the 15-year-old daughter of Berry, to accompany him to a disreputable house kept by Lou Smith, on Winnie street, near Bath avenue, where she remained for two days, her parents in the meantime being in ignorance of her whereabouts. She was discovered in this den yesterday by Isadore Maumie, a friend of her father, who informed him of the fact. Last night Special Police Officers Williamson and Larden, accompanied by Messrs. Berry and Maumie, proceeded to Mme. Smith's place, and in searching it found the girl and took her to the police station, from whence she was sent home. At the time the officers searched the house, Martin jumped through a window and made his escape, which was fortunate for him, as the girl's father was armed and had sworn to kill him. Lou Smith, proprietress of the house, was arrested at noon to-day, and committed to jail until Monday, when she will be tried in the recorder's court.

Led Into a Trap.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 17.
In July, 1884, Joseph H. Wilkins, agent of the Michigan Central Railroad company, at the Erie Street depot, was a defaulter to the company in quite a large sum, the total amount being placed at $5,000 or over. Wilkins fled, and since that time has been a fugitive from justice, living with his family in a small house across the river, near old Fort Erie. Previous to his flight he was well thought of in Buffalo and had a great number of friends who were much surprised at the sensational developments following the discovery of his peculations. The railroad company were insured against loss in his case by the Guarantee Company of North America, which insures against loss of this kind, and was called upon to pay the bond. It then became important to the Guarantee company to have Wilkins arrested. Matt Pinkerton's celebrated detective agency was employed and the result has been successful, and Wilkins is now in custody. The arrest was effected in this way. Wilkins, as stated has been living at Fort Erie, and yesterday he was induced to become one of a fishing party, in which John J. Crowe, of Chicago, a Pinkerton officer, was also a member, though, of course, unknown to Wilkins. They went down to Black Creek and apparently the party had a very good time. Wilkins imbibed freely, and on the way home went to sleep in the boat. The Pinkerton officer and his assistant then rowed across the river to the Bell House, at the head of Grand Island, where Col. Bryan was waiting, arriving about 1 o'clock this morning. Wilkins never realized the fact that he had been tricked until the handcuffs were placed upon him, and then he exclaimed that the "job was well done." The prisoner was brought to the city this morning and lodged in jail. Detective Crowe says he does not want any more experience with Fort Erie, and he will probably not return there. His associate (Johnson) took the boat back there this morning and his story must have caused no little astonishment among the special friends of Wilkins in the village. They had all been so completely duped by the clever Chicago detective that they must all feel exceedingly cheap.
